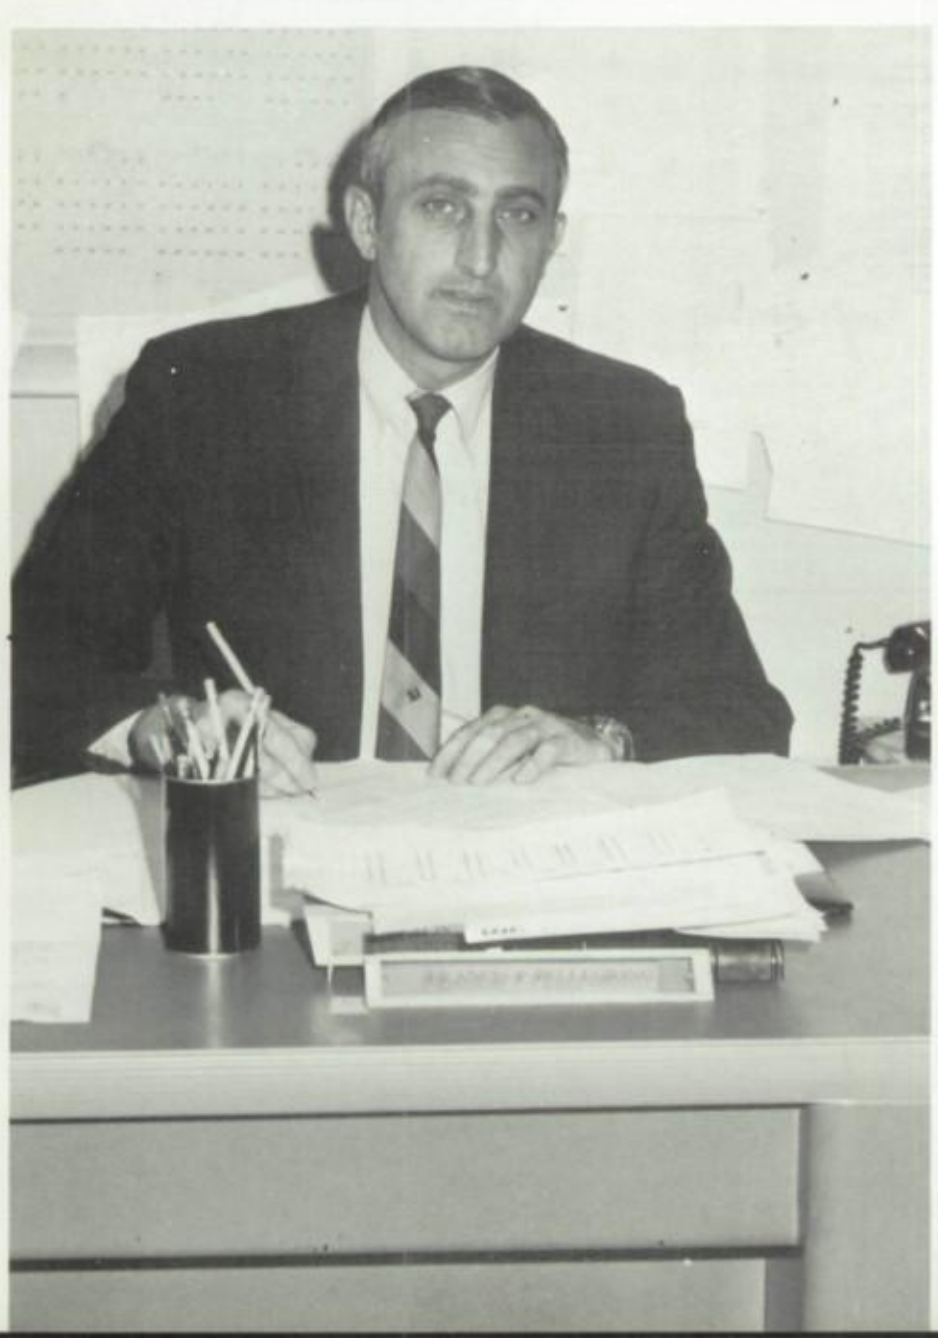
Many of today's youth, disappointed, disillusioned and angered by the injustices and exploitation of today's society, have rebelled against the Establishment that has presided over these betrayals of justice.

Many want to move in the direction of establishing a counter-culture that would turn inside out our conception of reality. They wish to establish a new philosophy in which fantasy and imagination sometimes replace reality. Things that are repressive are rejected; the very idea of guilt is unacceptable in every way; morality is entirely subjective and authority is resented, rejected, and resisted in whatever form it appears because it impedes the full expression of one's will.

Working to obliterate our present culture is unrealistic but failure to recognize the impact of new ideas is appalling. Youth has clearly demonstrated the need for greater and more rapid change and those of the ruling generation should heed the warning and hasten to implement many of youth's good ideas on poverty, equality, and war and peace and others of like merit. But above all else, those who rule should take into their confidence those who will later determine our destinies, and working together both groups can be assimilated into one after they have gone through the crucible of exchanging ideas and making determinations for the good of mankind.

Phillip L. Kelly
Superintendent



Members of the Class of 1971

The pleasure of writing a message in your yearbook is the culmination of a most enjoyable association we have had during the past six years. I salute each of you and extend heartiest congratulations from the entire staff who have served you so diligently during this time.

As young adults you possess one of the greatest single attributes ever in the unique ability to distinguish between that which is trivial and earth shaking and then finally see each in proper perspective.

This awareness is not nearly enough if you are going to make your mark in life. Today career choices are unlimited. Youth is forever discussing the burden this puts upon them. To them the uncertainty of choice at a time in their lives when they do not know enough either about themselves or about the world is a major problem.

Your formal education to date has given you a start for the future. We hope you have attained the capacity to respond creatively to the challenge.

president's address

As I lived through my high school years, I felt that my character and the characters of my classmates were developed here. We came through these doors with open minds and we were accepted and taught to think and reason like young adults. As we progressed in our high school lives, greater responsibilities were given to us in order to build a sound basis for our futures. We are greatly indebted to the faculty and the administration for their help and concern for us; especially Mr. Pellegrino, Mr. Gizzarelli, and Mr. Lundbohm for faithfully leading us through every day. We are also grateful to our class advisor, Miss Ormondroyd, for her devoted time and cooperation with the class of 1971. I extend my sincere thanks and congratulations to each member of the class of 1971 upon his or her graduation. I also wish to acknowledge my fellow class officers for their help: they are, Roger Donahue, Vice-President, Bonnie Greene, Secretary, and Dyan Recchia, Social Chairman. May our memories of Chariho remain with us always. Good luck and the best to all of you.

Thank you.

hereby bequeath . . .

I, Diana Piccarello, bequeath my seat in fourth period study hall to Beverly Austin.

I, Lester Gerrish, being of sound mind, leave vo-tech locker no. 7, which I held for three consecutive years to Brian (Chubba) Newell, who, I'm sure, is man enough to fill it.

I, Deborah Hunt, bequeath a bottle of aspirins to any teacher that has my brother Robert.

I, Wendy Richardson, leave the Ski Club and the sport of skiing, to all underclassmen with sincere hope that they gain from it nearly as much as I have.

I, Vivian Grinnell, leave my little red Vespa with matching helmet to my brother Bruce to take care of when it rains, and also to my brother, I leave Nathan Hale.

I, Donna Wallace, bequeath my English and creative writing classes with Mr. Cohen to anyone who can put up with him for two periods.

I, Scott B. Hirst, being of sound mind, bequeath my political genius to Mr. Lundbohm and Mr. Ruggieri, in hopes that in their future elections they will put it to good use.

I, Linda Cornell, being of sound mind and body, leave to my sister, Kathy, all the great fun I had with the boys from the Vo-Tech; and to Roberta Gardiner, my short skirts to cover her own minis.

I, Mickey Crandall, leave Robert Johnson an autographed picture of Myron Pfeistenbergerheinrich.

I, Joe Pendleton, give my accounting and data processing knowledge to anyone who wants it.

I, Carole Robar, leave my seat in the 'aggie room' to anyone who loves to crack up Mr. Roberts and his "student teachers."

I, Keith Williams, leave my seat in the 'aggie room' to my younger brother.

I, Vicki Savage, bequeath an Irish flag, a shamrock, my green gym suit, my white sneakers and socks, and most of all, a green hat, to Mr. Ruggieri.

I, Ron Prellwitz, bequeath one package of Handiwipes to Arthur Jordan; and to Mr. Vredenburg, a 1963 Chevy II, (who needs it more than me.)

I, C'Ann Davis, leave to any underclassman, in locker 549, a list of "Mr. Pellegrino's Personal Peeves" with certain students.

I, Valerie Ainsworth, bequeath to any library assistant the ability to "bust up" Mr. Chirnside and get away with it, as I have in the last four years. Keep smiling, Mr. Chirnside.

I, Steve Marttinen, leave Vinny Gaccione, (the merry-go-round man), all the excuses I used for being late for all my classes.

I, Charles Mauro, will my seat in Algebra I to my little brother Danny, in the hope that he will only have to use one of them.

I, Brenda Gardiner, leave my place in the dining room of Vo-Tech to Carol, who I know will enjoy it!

We, Carol Cayer and Colleen Lefoley, leave Rocky Point, Scarborough Beach, the Fiskemobile, Sta's sharp corners, Midland Mall, the "Dancing Shoes," Wakefield Bowling Alley, garbage cans, and wet pants to anyone who can have as good a time as we have had in our years at CHS.

I, Beth Andre, bequeath my fantastic ping pong serve to Padge in hope that she may perfect it.

I, Melanie Jepherson, bequeath my grotesque tooth retainer to Baby Bert, in hopes that he will put it to better use than I did.

I, Holly Hagen, bequeath to Jo Jacobson my great ability to skip a class, walk by the teacher, and then tell Mr. Lundbohm that I was in class, and get away with it.

I, Melanie Dufour, leave my job at Almacs to any sophisticated junior who believes he has seen it all.

I, Jean-Louis Goulet, give my hammer to my younger brother, Mike.

I, Oscar Tefft, hereby bequeath my '56 Chevy to Mr. Crepeau.

I, Mike Church, leave Mr. Pellegrino all the holes in the parking lot from the kickstand on my motorcycle.

I, Margie Coon, leave to the future nursing classes and Mrs. Fenelon, our dear old Mrs. Chase in hopes that she'll be treated better by them than she was by my class.

I, Rosemary Warner, leave Billy Reddy my locker and all my books.

I, Kathy Cronan, bequeath all my talking in data processing to any person who can still keep up with Mr. Keough at the same time.

I, Ann DelSanto, leave all my good times at Chariho to Judy Lilly in hopes that she has as much fun as I did.

I, Ernie Cassidy, do bequeath to any deserving underclassman my ability to catch more fish than Ralph Ruggieri.

I, Peter Caouette, bequeath my position as a senior to my brother Ed, if he makes it.

I, Mr. J. B., leave Bryant Boeglin and CHS, one bottle of "BRECK" shampoo.

I, Darlene McCall, bequeath to Susie Palmer as much fun and happiness as I have found in my years at CHS; and to Mr. Bliven, a package of gum to remind him of Typing II.

I, Bob (Monk) Morrison, bequeath to any junior in machine shop the ability to con Mr. Richardson the way I did.

I, Sandy Palmisano, leave my parking space to anyone who thinks their car is small enough to fit in it.

I, Jim Poston, leave to anyone who wants it, the dubious distinction of being the most diminutive fullback to play interscholastic varsity soccer for Chariho High School. To Coach Roberts, I leave one hundred bottles of punch.

I, Kathy Pendleton, bequeath all my worldly goods to any student who dares come into the school.

I, Michael Tennant, bequeath my books, the "Hobbit" and The Lord of the Rings, to my former English teacher, Mrs. Schweers.

I, John Turano, bequeath locker 591 to David Tough, a small locker for a small brain.

I, Ken Palmer, bequeath all my worldly goods to any student who is dumb enough to take them.

I, Gail Crandall, bequeath my field hockey stick to anyone with the gumption to put it to good use.

I, Mike Terranova, hereby bequeath my ability to drive to school, (and other places), without getting caught to anyone who can do it.

I, Linda Bartlett, leave to my sister Yvonne, my Chariho gym suit in hopes that she'll use it more than I did.

I, Lois Brown, bequeath my Smothers' Brothers' Fan Club button and my 8" by 10" glossy of Edward Kennedy to Mr. Dougherty.

I, Arthur Pill, bequeath all my knowledge of animals to anyone who thinks it would be useful.

I, Gary Marsh, leave to all future seniors the satisfaction of knowing you're almost finished.

I, Holly Smith, bequeath to any deserving underclassman, the challenge in Room 94, may they have the fun I had.

I, Michelle Thoman, leave Mr. Stu Douglas to future assassins, Doug Wilkinson and Paul Cassidy.

I, Cathy West, bequeath my seat to Mr. Moffitt's math classes to anyone as lucky as I was to have him five years in a row and enjoy it!!!

I, Elisabeth Harvey, bequeath to my younger brother and sister here at Chariho, peace of mind, as now I can't bother them between classes.

I, Dottie Johnson, bequeath my ability in stacking lockers to Bruce Ennis, and hope he can do as well as I did.

I, Nola Heinemann, declare that it's not only kids who skip school! . . . Right, Mr. DeLuca?

I, Maryanne McFarland, leave my ability to bug teachers, such as Mr. Vredenburg, to Judy Seavey, who is learning from experience.

I, Sally Saunders, bequeath my skill at smoking in the girls' room to Betty and Eileen. Try not to get caught.

I, Richard Phillips, will not bequeath anything because nobody at Chariho Regional gave me anything.

I, Roger Perry, bequeath my ability to get in trouble to my sister Ghirell. Rots of Ruck.

I, Dennis Clarke, bequeath my ability to get along with Mr. Thresher as I have, to any underclassman that takes M.D.

I, Judy Drake, bequeath my seat in Home Ec. to Terri Church, and hope she can put up with Dawn's yakking in her ear all period, as I did.

I, James Fiske, bequeath my book, How to Skip School in Ten Steps, to anyone who owns a coppertone '57 Chevy.

I, Mary Link, bequeath to Nancy Kelly all the happiness that goes with being a senior. Best of luck to you.

I, Thomas Brightman, leave all my tricks of skipping class to David Coulter in hopes that he won't get caught.

I, Diane Crandall, leave to my sister, Tammie, one "Chevy" jacket and a "Chevy" lover, and hope that she may learn as much about "Chevys" as I have.

I, Sta Peters, being of sound mind and body, well, sound mind, will a sincere apology to Toni Luth who has taken enough ribbing from me about that one certain softball game. Right, Frog?

I, Tom Donovan, do hereby leave Ralph Ruggieri the honorable title of "Piasan" in hopes that he will bestow it upon another Irishman.

I, Jack Strout, being of sound mind, do hereby bequeath my experiences in FFA to anyone who can experience and enjoy them as I have.

I, Roger Donahue, will the office of Vice President to any Junior who's big enough to protect himself.

I, Thomas Catto, will to anyone who's fast enough, the ability to go to Dunkin' Donuts during period 7 study.

I, Kenneth Sorensen, leave my recipe for apple turnovers to Bryant Boeglin, so Mr. Pellegrino won't go dry.

I, Brian McCuin, leave to any student the ability to con Mr. Pellegrino and Mr. Gizzarelli, like Ken Sorensen, Mike Church and myself, for being late to school.

I, Bonnie Greene, bequeath to all 9th, 10th, and 11th grade girls interested in sports, good luck in getting their way against the boys. IT WILL NEVER WORK!

I, Stephen Bousquet, bequeath my status as a year-round substitute on three varsity athletic teams to anyone on the bench who can do a play-by-play broadcast with post-game interviews. Incidentally, my uniforms are neatly pressed and on wooden hangers. They keep their shape better that way.

I, Andrea Panciera, bequeath to any future cheerleaders, the long, silent, never-ending rides home on the team bus when we lose, and the hilarious fun-filled ones that go by too fast when we win.

I, Donily Ranns, do hereby leave two monkeys in a bathtub to Charles Terrien.

I, Charles Corr, do hereby leave my position as "Resident Radical" to the sophomore class president, knowing he'll do the title justice.

We, Cindy Petrichko and Marcia Baton, hereby leave Dunkin' Donuts and our punch card to Cindy Lamb.

We, Kate Johnson and Gladys Howard, hereby leave to Billy Bliven, a book of Supreme Court Laws.

I, Ted Sweeten, leave to this school, the memory of me, whether it be for better or worse.

I, Alden Taylor, leave all the contributions I can make to this school, including those in the future.

I, Dean Findeisen, will the little room in the locker room to anyone who can raise a big stink.

I, Al Ring, bequeath to my brother, Mike (not to mention any names), my ability to handle Mr. Pellegrino.

I, Paul Posillo, having a peaceful mind and body, hereby leave one of my favorite songs to Mr. Hamel, "Romping Through the Swamp."

I, Byron Cahoone, will my varsity wrestling position to Mike Crooker, because he's the only one big enough to fill it.

I, Robert Kettlety, leave my locker to anyone who is daring enough to open it.

I, Eric Taylor, leave my wild days in 'Aggie' to Bruce Taylor, because only a nut like him could stand it.

I, Bruce Cronkite, leave to Mr. Craig one full year of free hot lunches, because welfare is not so generous anymore.

I, Diane Picard, leave gym locker 14 to any senior girl who wants it.

I, Michael Gibbons, leave locker 588 to anyone who can stuff it full of newspaper.

I, Walter Hodes, bequeath my place in wrestling to Ted.

I, Dave Eccleston, don't leave anything because I have nothing to leave.

I, Frank Dickey, bequeath one bottle of extra-strength Excedrin to the teachers of Chariho. Take two tablets PRN for stress due to overly ambitious students. Don't empty the bottle in one day.

I, Dave Liese, bequeath my Converse sneakers to Bubbles Perreault, in hopes that she will run faster, jump higher, and still make the girls' basketball team.

I, Richard Cronin, leave to Ricky Ringler, the position of shop foreman, and hope that he doesn't shut the power down in the middle of somebody's thread.

I, Roy Arnott, leave my oversupplied locker of pencils and pens to Scag. She needs them.

I, Kevin Cronin, leave to Mr. Richardson, the vise Roy and I made.

I, Calbert Edwards, bequeath not a thing to anyone, because I took it all with me.

I, George Joslin, hereby bequeath my ability to snowball Mr. Lundbohm to my two brothers in hopes that he catches them.

I, David Chase, leave my locker in Automotives to any junior who thinks he can fill it with as much junk as I did.

I, Pam Laurent, being of sound mind and body, hereby will my locker to anyone who can get beer out of that darn Schaefer sign.

I, Geof Greene, leave my locker to any enthusiastic soccer player in hopes that he can bang the side of it in even farther than I did.

I, Steve Marttinen, bequeath all the nerves in the world to anybody who has enough nerve to be late for all his classes.

I, Chef Peter Moretti, give the privilege of serving Mr. Lundbohm to any Junior Chef who can cook Swedish meatballs.

I, Nannette Abbruzzese, leave to all underclassmen, the ability to go from room to room without the use of a pass.

I, Peter Abbruzzese, leave to Mr. Ruggieri, a glob of grease for the kids next year.

I, Gary Hall, bequeath my parking spot at the Vo Tech to anyone who has enough money to pay Arthur Jordan's tow charges.

We, Chip Albanese and Fifi Peters, leave to Miss Kamp, quiet Monday mornings. Good morning, Auntie!

I, James Engel, bequeath this school to the striving heads who will continue here.

I, Maclyn Thompson, leave one inflatable Chicquita banana to Miss O and Miss Kampper.

I, Kathy Pucci, will to the class of 1971, success in what they may endeavor in the future years.

I, Lloyd Cook, do hereby bequeath to my buddy, "Dusty," a certain girl in his class, for whom I know he has a great liking.

I, Duane Harvey, leave to Mr. Bliven peace and quiet, no more trouble, and no more picking on him in the halls and during class. Good luck, Mr. Bliven, I hope you find a new student to fill my shoes.

I, Linda Baton, hereby leave my seat in Mrs. Wiitala's room to anyone who can complain as much as I do about her idol, Mr. Cohen.

I, Mark Link Godden, bequeath my belief that, if I were to have a choice, my previous four years of high school should be changed for an entirely different method of education.

We, Nate, Chuck, Roger, Bosk, Fritz, Dave, Jim Post, Geof, Dean, Tom Cat, Louie, Denny, and Gil, the men of the class of 1971, hereby bequeath all of Chariho's athletic facilities to the girls, with all due respect to the administration, the coaching staffs, and Dave Liese's blackboard in the gym.

We, Fifi, Chip, Spider, Moose, Eagle, and Chink, leave to all the girls at Chariho, the fight for equality in the athletic program, in hopes that they can withstand the loss of boyfriends, the lack of school backing, and the all 'round pressures put on by "friends." Good luck, girls, it's a valuable and worthy cause.

I, Cheryl Wilkinson, do hereby leave Chariho!

by
an old kid

I anxiously pushed open the door which read GIRLS LOCKER ROOM and walked in, hearing the familiar hum of voices and muffled tones of conversation. The place seemed enormous, with its clean, wide corridors and freshly painted walls, and was quite spacious and comfortable. A large door bearing the boldface words PLAYERS ONLY opened to a concrete runway leading to the girls' gym — the CAROL ORMONDROYD MEMORIAL SPORTS COLISEUM FOR WOMEN. There were apparently several alumni already here, because a large banner reading CHARIHO REUNION: CLASS OF 1971 was suspended from one of the facings of a balcony.

I approached the group that was seated in the stands: Senator Scott Hirst was there, along with his campaign manager, Joe Pendleton, and several followers. Senator Hirst, inappropriately attired in a faded blue FFA jacket, cleared his throat to begin a speech but was momentarily interrupted by a flurry of eggs and assorted vegetables coming from below. Bob Petrone, a grocer and political activist, was supplying the ammunition from an old Almacs box, while Roly Sherman, Danny Benn, and Byron Cahoone were busily hurling garbage at the controversial Senator.

"You goin' to the game tonight?" someone asked. I turned around to see Charlie Mauro huddled in a corner eating the rest of his cold lunch.

"I don't know, Charlie," I replied, "but where's the reunion? Aren't they having it here?"

"Yeah," he answered, "but not 'til 1:30." A quick glance at the clock told me it was only about 12:30.

The bouncing of a basketball and scuffle of feet against the hardwood broke the silence. Hizzy Brown, employing split-second fakes against an imaginary opponent, dribbled between his legs, leaped gracefully, and released the ball with a snap of the wrists. The leather sphere floated to the rim and swished through the net. "Nice shot, Hizzy," encouraged Lynn Newell and Paul Posillo from the stands. Mauro, watching closely, shook his head in disgust and nibbled at a cheese sandwich.

"Oh boy," he said, shifting his gaze, "here they come." A group of men carrying fishing poles and tackle boxes trudged along the far sideline searching for their seats. I recognized Ernie Cassidy, Steve Marttinen, Jim Breckenridge, Joe Ayotte, Ted Sweeten and Jon Zegarzewski, all straightening out their equipment and removing their hip boots. Jack Strout, hobbling in on crutches, pushed himself down the aisle and sat down with his buddies.

"I'm surprised they're here," mumbled Charlie. "Thought sure they'd be at Locustville Pond today."

Moments later, a couple of well-known mechanics slowly walked in, wiping grease from their hands. Mike Gibbons and Lester Gerrish were discussing a topic of mutual interest: cars.

"Well, Mike," he began, "I got a new super sport deluxe 440 job, with a three-speed, double-barrel, hydro-shift air-lift jacked-up synchronized four-wheel tight-grip rear end." This description of his new car, a '58 DeSoto Firesweep Hardtop, brought whistles and raised eyebrows from a group of car buffs which included Ron Prellwitz, George "Lehigh" Joslin, Rog Perry, Bruce Cronkite, Dave Chase, Tommy Owens, and Johnny Turano.

"D'ya hear that?" shouted Lloyd Cook, nudging Brian McCuin. "Hey! Brian! Take those stupid headphones off!"

Next, I noticed Jim Engel and Pete Caouette leading a unique-looking group of individuals to a reserved section far up in the bleachers. The group included Dave Eccleston, Maurice "Microbus" Longo, Denny Jones, Mark Godden, George DeFreitas, and Mike Mageau. Suddenly, Engel turned around, raised his arm, and Sparky Austin rushed onto the court wielding a beat-up electric guitar featuring an assortment of buttons and controls. Engel picked up a microphone and accompanied Austin in a psychedelic, freaked-out version of "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

"Oh, no!" screamed Michelle Thoman. "They gotta be kidding!"

"Why?" Arthur Pill asked. "Were you expecting 'In-a-Gadda-Da-Vida' or something?"

A marble rolled out in front of me and onto the court. I reached for it, but Evan Burdick stopped me. "It's okay, I got it," he said. Mickey Crandall, Robert Brown, Brent Burdick and Gary Hall were dueling each other in a lively game of marbles while Frank Dickey and Tommy Saddow watched.

"That's some game, " piped Bob Morrison, "but you guys oughta bowl."

Charlie Corr turned around and sighed disgustedly. "Bowling! Marbles! What a bunch of fascist idiots! Lock 'em up, I say — every one of 'em!" Corr was wearing an old army jacket with an inscription on the back that read WOODSTOCK '69.

"This guy's sick!" screamed Pete Abbruzzese, rushing in from a side door. Kathy Pucci followed, carrying a nurse's bag. "Quick!" yelled Pete. "Get 'im in the ambulance!" Corr, struggling in resistance, broke loose but was immediately apprehended by Wayne Neugent, Sam Nigrelli, and Buddy Hodes, who pinned Corr to the gym floor in a record fourteen seconds.

Mauro looked up at me and said, "You'd better get outa here for a few minutes. Boy, this is gettin' rough."

I took Charlie's advice and stepped outside into the cold air. It was snowing lightly, and there were small patches of ice on the sidewalk. Two girls pushing a metal cart filled with materials approached me. "How 'bout a book cover?" suggested Nola Heinemann. Her partner, Sandy Palmisano, held up a ball point pen: "Thirty-five cents."

"No, thanks," I replied, and they slowly moved on.

Across the street, someone was apparently trying to start his car but was having little success. The car looked like Kenny Sorensen's old Mustang, but I wasn't sure. I walked over, and sure enough, there was Kenny in the driver's seat. He rolled the window down.

"Hey! Call the R & R, will ya?" he said to me. "I think I blew the engine."

Another vehicle pulled up — this one a noisy red truck with several guys in the back. The driver this time was Roger Donahue, and his riders were Tom Catto, Geoff Greene, Dave Liese, Greg Champlin and Tommy Donovan. "Let's take a walk in," Liese said, "and see if there's any heifers."

Moments later a rattling white Valiant rounded the corner on two wheels and clambered into the schoolyard. Maclyn Thompson and a few others got out of the vehicle, which had a colorful banner on its right side reading BURDICKVILLE BLUE BOMBERS PROFESSIONAL FIELD HOCKEY TEAM: STASIA PETERS — COACH.

I turned around to go back to the gym, but Maclyn led her unit toward me — it included Melanie Jepherson, Gail Crandall, Bonnie Greene, Janice Albanese, and Beth Andre. They were carrying field hockey sticks and the words "Blue Bombers" appeared in dark blue across the front of their uniforms.

"Hey, Steve," snickered Liese, "get ready. They'll probably start a womens' lib march any minute now."

Stasia Peters, the coach, ran up to the team and halted. "Let's go, girls," she ordered. "We're playing the Hopkinton City Colonials tomorrow."

"Oops!" teased Liese. "Excuse me! C'mon, now, Steve, let's leave the little heif — uh, girls alone." The Bombers then hustled out to the practice field joyfully singing "Home on the Range" — off key.

A big green stake truck rolled into the driveway leading to the back of the school. The words "KINGSTON TURF FARMS" were printed on the doors. As the vehicle disappeared, I saw Charlie Bednarczyk and Gary Lewis wave — they were sitting on top of a huge pile of sod, in the back of the truck. The rest of the 'sod squad' included Gib Carpenter, Nate Gencarella, and Jim "Bronson" Fiske, who was driving the truck. Jim was giving orders to his co-workers, who were in turn telling him — loudly — to shut the heck up.

"Hey, Fiske!" shouted Charlie. "Stop the truck — quick! Louie just fell out of the back!"

"Oh, my heart, " sighed Jim, applying the brakes.

I decided I had had enough of this nonsense, and returned to the Coliseum. As I walked up the sideline, Sheila Cawley called me. I climbed up the bleachers, and Oscar Tefft, Vivian Grinnell, Melanie Dufour, and Lois Brown were all talking.

"I'm sick and tired of being known as a brain to everyone," said Sheila disdainfully. "From now on I'm gonna try to be just an average person with average capabilities."

"Well here, then," blurted towering Duane Harvey. "See if ya can do dese 'rithmetic problems for me."

"Hungry?" asked Pete Moretti, tossing me a Big Chef. Brad Lewis labored under a stack of freshly-baked pies, and Gary Hoffman and Al Ring followed to make sure Brad didn't drop any. Laura Buck, scampered behind taking down orders.

"A Big Chef?" screamed Eddie Duhamel. "Steve," he explained, "it's "Buck Night" at the Bradford Room tomorrow night. Why don't you stop in?"

"Good!" said Dyan Recchia. "And while you're in town, stop in at McCrory's and look around. We're having a sale this week."

Dean Findeisen interrupted: "Come on over to Walgreen's, Bosk. I'll see if I can interest you in any tape players or portable TV sets."

"I don't see why everyone is so interested in Westerly," Cathy West complained. "I wish someone would come to Hope Valley once in a while — it's a nice little town, I don't care what anybody says." Cathy was not alone in her opinion, either, for there were several others who agreed with her, and Valeri Ainsworth was the first to speak up.

"Cathy's right, you know," she agreed. "People always overlook the Valley, and they shouldn't. Why, it has two barber shops, a bakery, a drug store, a library — even a Western Auto store!" Colleen Lefoley, Marcia Baton, and Debbie Brayman were nodding their heads in agreement.

"It's a good little town," Gladys Howard said, "even if people do criticize it. The pizza isn't that bad!!"

"No, but the soda sure is!" complained Keith Williams, who was chatting with Ken Palmer and Bob Kettlety. "I spilled some in my car last week and it rotted the seat covers!"

"Well," Cathy concluded, "Hope Valley's still a pretty good place — right, girls?"

"RIGHT!!" the group shot back in unison.

I decided to take a walk around the rest of the school building to see if anyone was around. I looked in the typing room, and there were a few people there whom I recognized.

"Hi, Steve," greeted Darlene McCall as I stepped in. She was seated at a desk along with a group of others: Robin Marshall, Maryanne McFarland, Brenda Moore, Kathy Pendleton and Carol Cayer. They were typing lessons out of a book which was entitled "FIRST YEAR TYPEWRITING."

"Didn't you girls take typing in high school?" I asked.

"We did," Carol explained, "but we got rusty."

"We're rusty, too," added C'Ann Davis and Brenda Gardiner from across the room. "We had Mr. Bliven for Law."

George Weeden, who was emptying waste baskets, was puzzled. "How come you're studying now," he said, "if you took the course fifteen years ago?"

"We're trying for our high school equivalency diplomas," said Nanette Abbruzzese, "because the place we applied at won't accept us."

"What's the name of the place?" I inquired.

"Well . . . er . . . uh . . . that's just it," C'Ann stammered. "We all want to be clerks here at the school — and Mr. Bliven's still here."

"So?" said George.

"He said he can't afford the publicity, so we're taking these extra courses," peeped Linda Bartlett, who was typing furiously along with Linda Baton, Patty Lyon, Cheryl Wilkinson, Judy Drake and Cheryl LaFountain.

Holly Smith and a few of her old high school buddies walked down the corridor past the typing room. Holly was awkwardly entwined in a huge roll of IBM sheets which had the same phrase typed on it over and over again: Holly and George . . . Holly and George . . . Holly and George . . .

"What the heck is this?" asked Roy Arnott, who was sweeping the corridors. Pam Laurent, Madlin Algiere, Kathy Corning, Diane Crandall, Donna Wallace, and Rosemary Warner were following Holly, and they too, were wrapped up in rolls of IBM sheets.

"It's a fashion show — what do you think it is?" said Holly sarcastically. Her friends laughed.

"Well," interrupted Robert Johnson, shuffling down the hall, "if this is a fashion show, then I'd better not attend the reunion — it might be worse!"

I was on my way back to the Coliseum when I saw Doug MacLean and Jimmy Curzio standing on a stepladder. They were putting new light bulbs into the EXIT signs in front of the new wing entrance.

"Wait, Mike," said Curzio to Mike Terranova. "Try the light switch to see if it works." Mike flipped the switch — and all kinds of sparks and smoke shot out of the light fixture. Apparently, a short circuit had developed. The light bulbs flicked once or twice and then popped.

MacLean signed. "Jim," he said, "tell Joe Sposato to run over to the Vo-Tech and ask Mr. Norris for some more bulbs. And don't get Christmas bulbs, either!"

As I walked past the boys' room, I noticed Bill Korytkowski, Yilmaz Dogan, and Adrian Dolloff nailing the door shut. They were pounding spikes through the wall.

"What are you doing that for, Bill?" I asked.

"Well," he said, "I guess they tried locking the door but that didn't work — so they told us to nail the thing shut."

A few nurses were standing by: Linda Cornell, Cindy Petrichko, Anne Delsanto, and Margie Coon. "Get ready," ordered Cindy, "in case someone gets a rude awakening."

I saw Alden Taylor silently walk into the cafetorium and sit down in the back. Patty Wall was on the other side reading a book. As I opened the doors, he looked up nervously to see who it was.

"Go away," Alden said. "I ain't goin' to no reunion."

"Why?" I asked.

He explained that he, too, was attempting to receive a high school equivalency diploma. He told me that he never learned how to cook toast correctly.

I returned to the Coliseum to the sounds of machines. Kev and Richard Cronin and Al Goddard were operating a device that manufactures battery-powered, remote-control teachers. It was one of the most ingenious educational innovations to come along in years. I asked Al about the machine.

"It's very effective," he said. "We had one over at the vocational school when I was a kid, but the teachers were afraid of losing their jobs, so we never used it."

Jim Poston ran up to me and said, "Hey, somebody better do something, 'cause Pat Farrell and Eric Taylor are pasting flowers and peace signs on all the cars outside."

Charlie Mauro was just returning to the sideline, pushing a broom. "See what I mean? Some of these jokers still think they're in high school!"

"I wish I was, man," said Tommy Brightman, who was pushing a cart loaded with projectors and other AVA equipment. "I didn't have to go to class that much."

"Yeah, well, you're lucky," Denny Clarke told him. "Shucks, the only way we could get outa class was to take off and go down the beach!"

"Yeah, I remember that," said Carole Robar. "That was when the absentee list was four pages long."

Debbie Sullivan and Diana Piccarello were shaking their heads. "We weren't here then," explained Debbie. "Could you tell us what happened?"

"Okay," said Denny. "When we were in the eleventh grade, I guess some of us started to get restless towards the end of the year — so one day a few kids skipped school to go to the beach, and it caught on. One day there were about sixty kids there."
school to go to the beach, and it caught on. One day there were about sixty kids there."

"Sixty!" screamed Diana.

"Sounds like one of those old Frankie Avalon movies, Like Beach Blanket Bingo or something," said Andrea Panciera.

"That bad, huh?" said Vicki Savage. "Did the girls wear those long one-piece bathing suits?"

"It was something like that," said Denny, "except for the rock n'roll music. We listened to those Woodstock tapes, instead of Annette Funicello."

Carole Robar was standing alongside, giggling like crazy. I asked her what she was laughing at, but she gave the same answer as she did when she was in school: "Nothing."

"Gee, I went to school in Pleasantville, New York," said Sally Cuthbertson, "and we didn't have a beach."

"That's too bad," admitted Brenda Gordon. "Was there a Burger Chef?"

"Nope, just an A & P and a Thom McAn store," replied Sally. "Up in Pleasantville they make Reader's Digests."

"They do?" screeched Barbara Watrous. "We have the Westerly Sun, you know."

"Big deal," mumbled Holly Hagen. "They probably have Grit in New York, and that's just as good."

Dotty Johnson confronted us and announced, "Everyone please sit down. The reunion ceremonies will start any minute now." In a few moments, the members of the Chariho High Class of 1971 were seated comfortably in the bleachers. Someone set up a microphone and stand at center court, and a tall man in a dark suit walked slowly to the center of the Coliseum. Everyone in the stands was whispering.

"Who is it?" they were asking each other. The man appeared to be in his sixties, but he still looked very healthy. He calmly cleared his throat and gripped the mike.

"I'm glad you all could make it here today," he said, but stopped because of the thundering ovation that everyone was giving him. Everyone recognized the voice — it was Mr. Pellegrino, and I felt as though I were a senior once again, on the first day of school.

Finally, the cheering ceased. Mr. Pellegrino politely thanked the audience and cleared his throat once again.

"This is really a big day for me, you know," he said very candidly.

I turned once more to see a few late-comers entering the gym: Jean-Louis Goulet, Maureen MacMillan, Margaret Lamphere, Mary Link, Ernestine Lassor, Elizabeth Harvey, and Billy Clark. The principal calmly waited for those seven ex-seniors to be seated before he resumed speaking.

"I'm truly pleased to be here," he continued. "I feel so much younger today, for some strange reason . . ."

unsung heroes:

Coach Roberts and his players received much of the publicity during the 1970 soccer season, but there were several individuals who were unnoticed yet influential in the team's success. Among these individuals were Carole Robar, the team manager; Brad Blackmar, the ever-popular bus driver, and Mr. Charlie Healy, nicknamed the "good luck charm," who faithfully followed the Chargers — and even did a little coaching.

jayvee soccer: building for the future

jayvee soccer was initiated in 1970, when a large group of eighth and ninth graders seemed to be very enthusiastic and attentive to the sport. facilities were a bit limited as expected, but coach moffitt and his little booters enjoyed an exciting first year.

a jayvee soccer team can pay big dividends to the varsity club for the next four or five seasons. many of the 1970 varsity members didn't know the game thoroughly until they were in the 11th or 12th grade. now, however, youngsters are being given early experience on the field and a fine education of the game while still in junior high.

Junior Varsity basketball is where much-needed experience counts, and where talent develops. Lenny Vetter, a hustling, aggressive rebounder, scrappy Dave Arnold, and his brother, Mike, were three players who performed well for Coach Dwight Baker during the 1970-71 season.

Dave Arnold was one of four freshmen to see action for the Little Chargers last season. Center Brian Caulfield gained valuable experience, as did guard Ron Liese. Gary Olsen and Gordon Smith, a pair of sophomores, also turned in several key performances for CHS.

The Chariho Varsity basketball team began the 1970-71 season well, winning four of their first five games, but after toppling South Kingstown, 55-51, in the league opener, the Chargers dropped three of their next four contests. Those three games were ones in which Chariho had maintained the lead for the greater part of the game, and then lost in the last minute or in overtime. Overall, the Chargers ended up with a 7-11 record and a 2-8 league mark. Four returning juniors and several experienced sophomores head next year's cast.

Wrestling has become an increasingly popular sport since Coach Hamel initiated a wrestling program. The Chargers finished the 1970-71 season with a 5-3 league record and a 6-7 overall mark. Ten of this year's sixteen lettermen are returning next year, to give Coach Hamel a solid basis for another fine season. Several promising youngsters from this season's jayvee team will also help the Chargers, who finished second in the R.I. Suburban West division in only their second year of league competition.

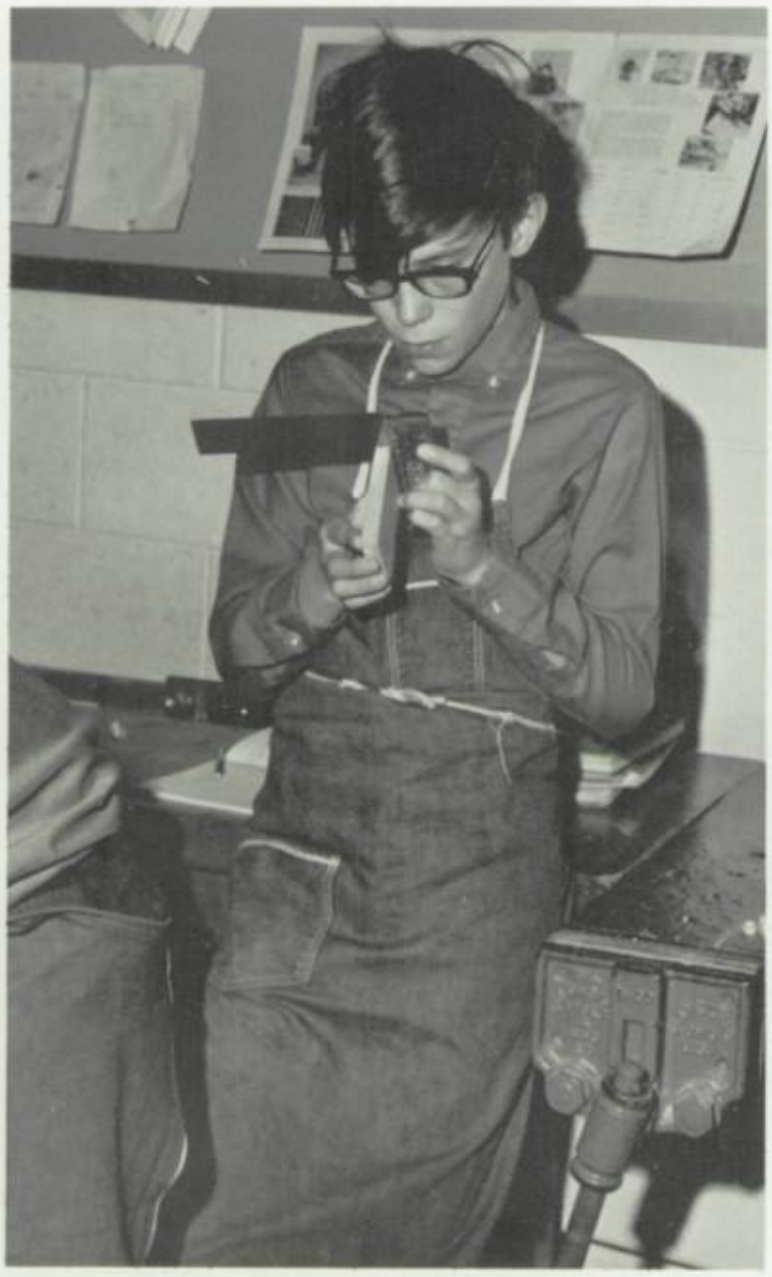
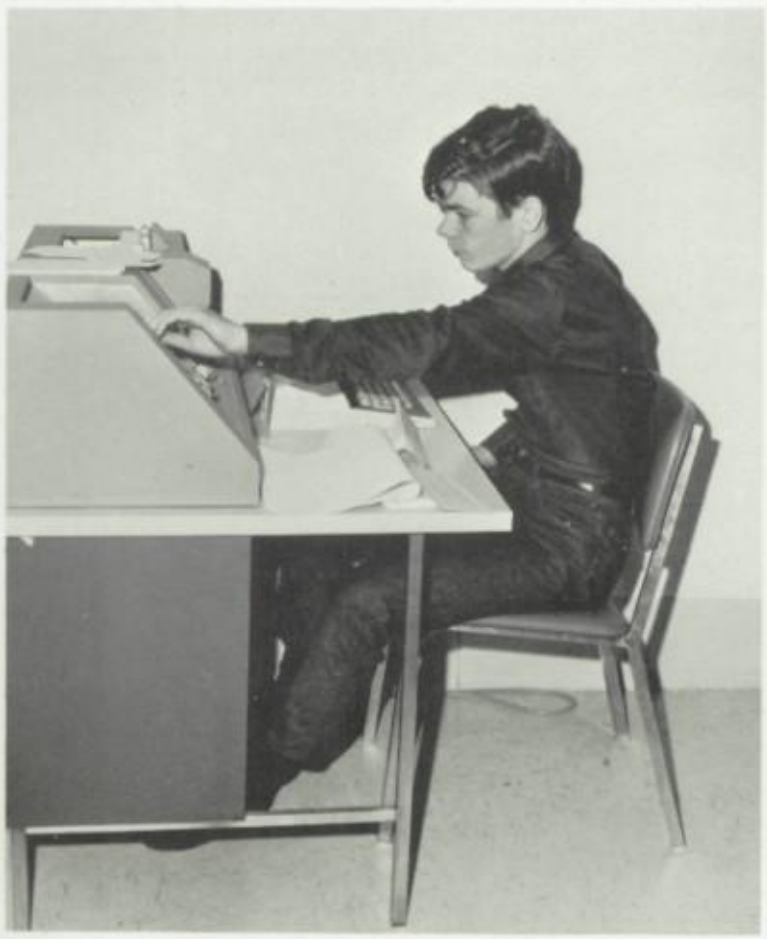
Marcia Lopriore

As a fond mother, when the day is o'er
Leads by the hand her little child to bed,
Half willing, half reluctant to be led,
And leave his broken playthings on the floor,
Still gazing at them through the open door,
Nor wholly reassured and comforted
By promises of others in their stead,
Which, though more splendid, may not please him more;
So Nature deals with us, and takes away
Our playthings one by one, and by the hand
Leads us to rest so gently, that we go
Scarce knowing if we wish to go or stay,
Being too full of sleep to understand
How far the unknown transcends the what we know.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW



"Well, everyone has to start somewhere."



"10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1, blastoff!!"

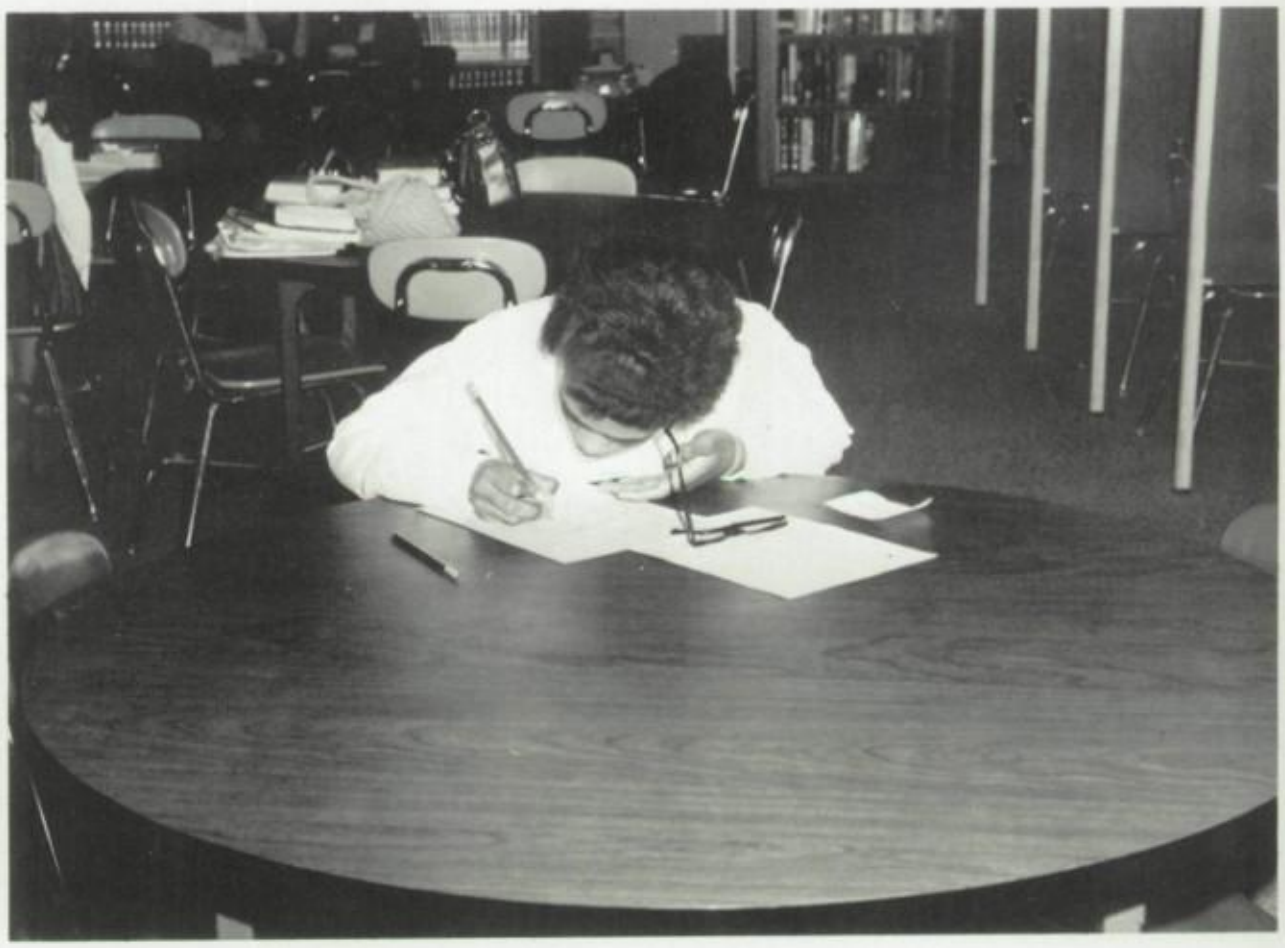
"do it!!"

"What did you call me?"

"I wish I had used ultra brite this morning."

"Romper bomper stomper boo, tell me, tell me, tell me do . . ."

"Darn thing just won't fit!"



"Glasses, who needs 'em?"

"Oh my knee!"

"da devil made me do it."

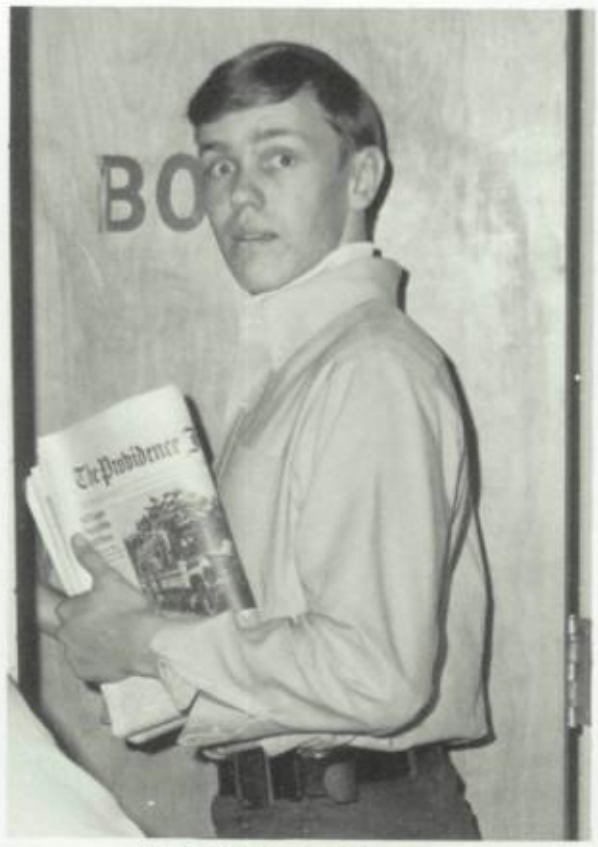
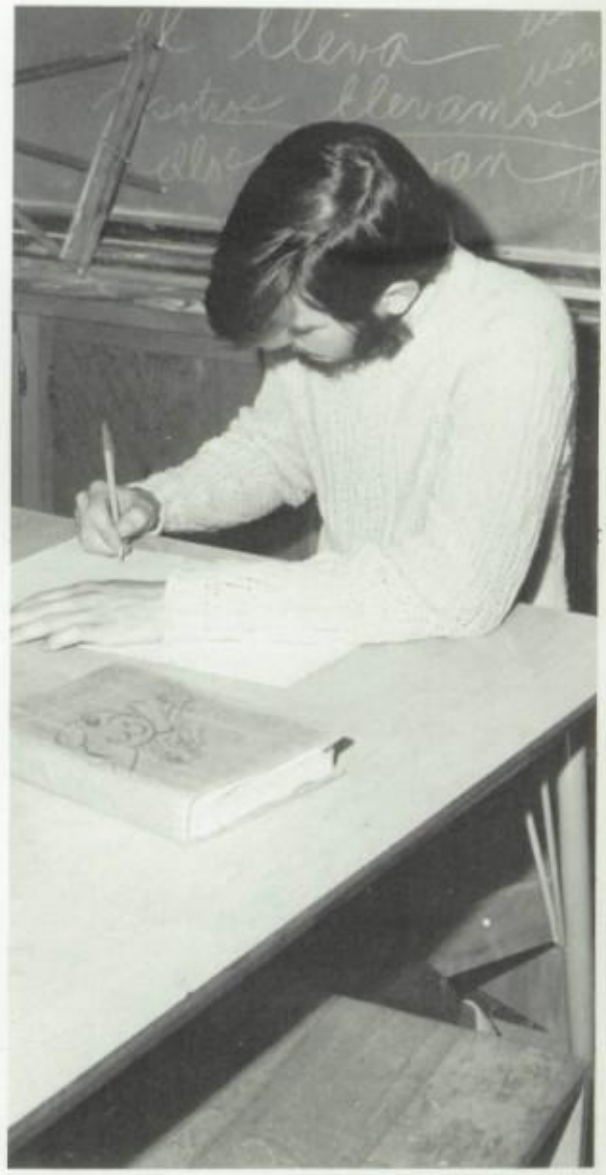
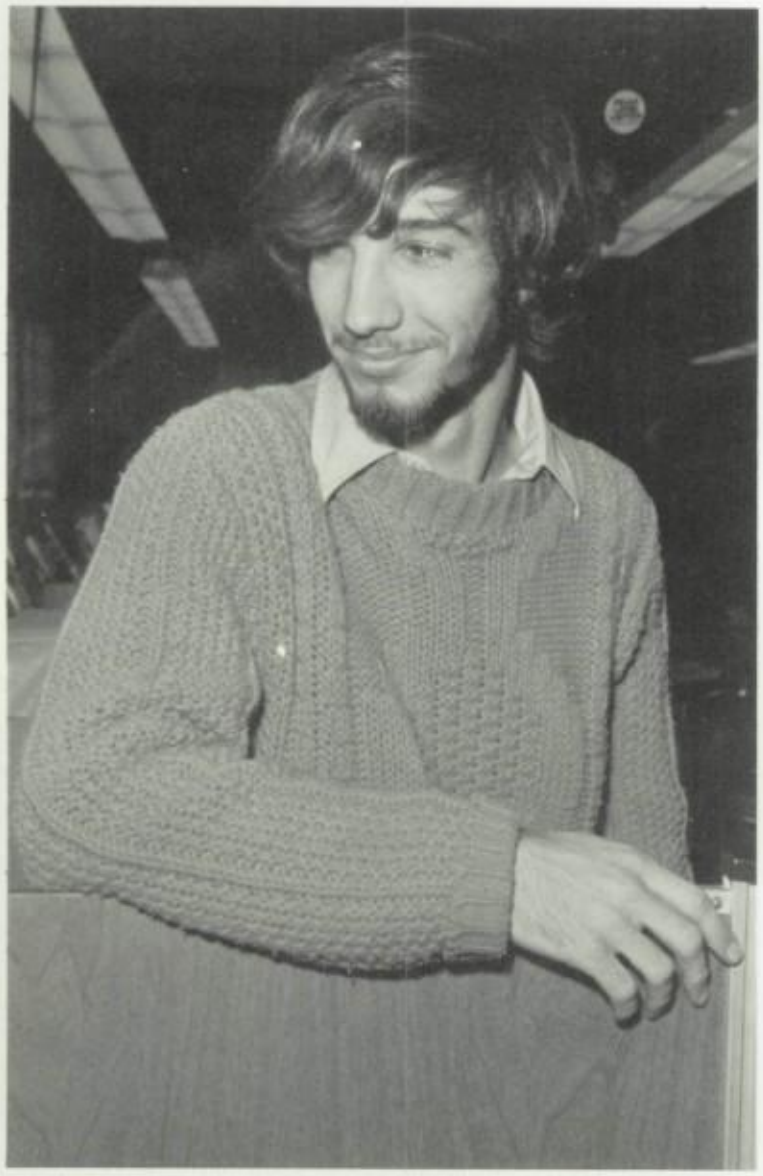
V-V-Vicki — the m-matron's in th-there!



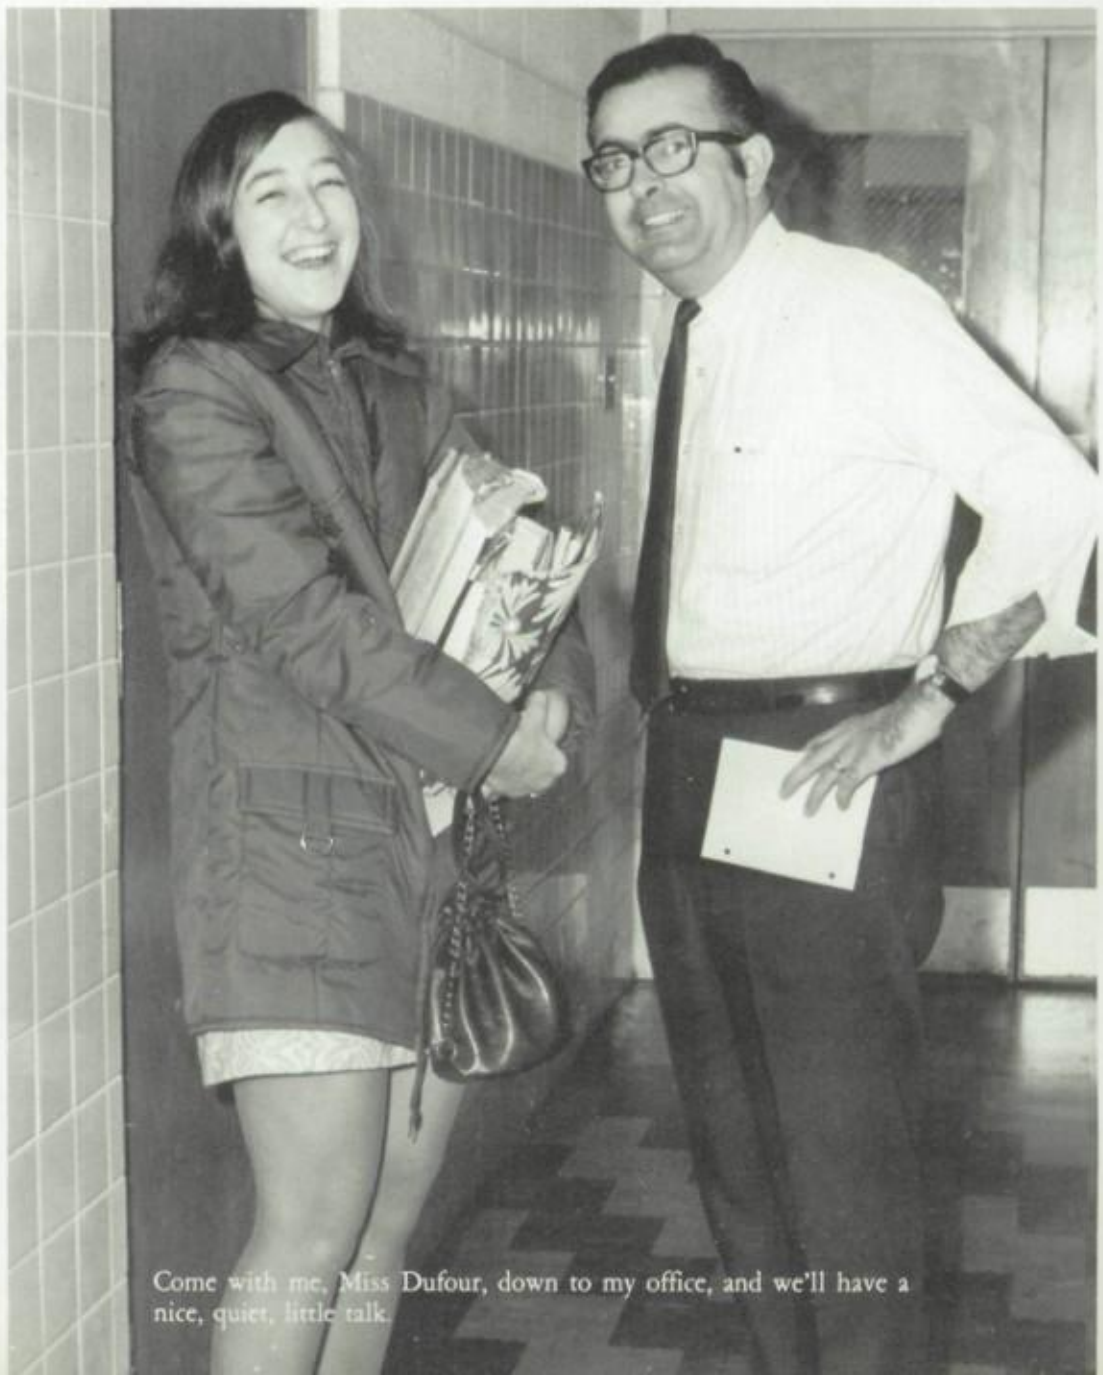
Guess I'll go read the paper.



No, that's not right — the nose is too small for Mickey Mouse.



What do you mean, Mr. Bliven wants to go to Dunkin' Donuts?



Come with me, Miss Dufour, down to my office, and we'll have a nice, quiet, little talk.
